

UFO BEAN

What if your daily coffee didn't come from Earth?

UFO Beans is not just a coffee brand—it's an interdimensional experience. With striking UFO-shaped packaging and the tagline "Coffee from Another Dimension" the brand blends curiosity, storytelling, and design into every cup.

This brief focuses on creating a content marketing campaign that brings the extraterrestrial identity of UFO Beans to life. The goal is to craft a narrative that feels mysterious, playful, and immersive—positioning the product as something discovered rather than manufactured.

Starting with clear objectives, I explored the mindset of modern coffee drinkers to uncover insights around curiosity and the desire for new experiences shaping a bold, otherworldly proposition for UFO Beans, coffee that feels discovered, not made.

Human insight

Gen Z likes aesthetic products with a story something they can experience and share

Brand insight

UFO Beans stands out with UFO-shaped packaging & coffee from another dimension" story

Big Idea

Position UFO Beans as a mysterious, otherworldly discovery

Action Plan

Tease

- 1.Cryptic social posts hinting at "alien sightings" and unidentified objects
- 2.Short-form videos of UFO appearing in unexpected places

Launch

- 3.Reveal campaign showcasing the UFO packaging as the "discovered object"
- 4.Interactive content (AR filter / POV: "you found UFO Beans")
- 5.Story driven animated reels introducing the "origin from another dimension"

Sustain

- 6.Community engagement: "Spot the UFO" user-generated content
- 7.Collaborations with creators around sci-fi, aesthetics, and niche coffee culture
- 8."Alien transmissions" series (ongoing content storytelling)

Target Audience

Source – NCA / Statista

Who

18–30 y/o Gen Z
& Young Millennials
Urban, trend-aware

Mindset

Explorative
Experience-driven
Aesthetic-focused

Spending

“Adult money”
Affordable premium

“Curious young adults who seek unique, aesthetic coffee experiences
without luxury pricing”

“They’re not looking for just coffee
they’re looking for something worth discovering.”

From the cultural shift and category behavior, I identified that the opportunity lies in tapping into curiosity and escapism.

By combining the desire for new experiences with a strong visual identity, UFO Beans becomes more than coffee—it becomes a discovery.

This forms the foundation for communication and campaign execution.

Proposition

When the situation is

- . Coffee brands focus on taste, quality, and lifestyle
- . Content feels repetitive and predictable across the category
- . New brands struggle to capture attention in a saturated market

Because they think

- . Coffee should be marketed clearly and directly, focusing on product benefits rather than storytelling.

Then what if...

Coffee wasn't explained—but discovered?
What if the brand created mysterious, story driven content that slowly reveals itself, turning every interaction into a moment of curiosity and engagement.

Solution

A COFFEE BRAND THAT FEELS LIKE A DISCOVERY-

By creating cryptic, sci-fi inspired content, UFO Beans builds intrigue instead of clarity drawing audiences in through curiosity. From "alien sightings" to unexplained product drops, the brand unfolds like a mystery.

Instead of traditional ads, the campaign uses storytelling, aesthetics, and interactive content to hook a new generation—making them feel like they've discovered something unknown.

This approach positions UFO Beans as more than coffee. it becomes an experience that people want to explore, share, and be part of.

The Big Idea!

"The Signal Has Arrived"

A mysterious signal from another dimension begins to appear across platforms.

At first, it's unexplainable. Then, it becomes a discovery. Finally, it becomes a phenomenon.

UFO Beans isn't launched like a product—it's uncovered like an event.

Soft Launch (Tease Phase)

Goal: Create curiosity & confusion

Content Style: Cryptic / Glitch / Unexplained

Content Ideas

1. Short videos of UFO sightings in everyday places (desk, café, street)
2. Distorted audio clips: "Signal detected..."
3. Close-up, unidentifiable product shots (no full reveal)
4. Posters / social posts with symbols, coordinates, alien language
5. "Leaked footage" style Raw TV

Audience reaction:

"What is this?"

Launch Phase

Goal: Reveal + Drive Attention

Content Style: Cinematic / Reveal / Storytelling

Content Ideas

- 1.Full reveal of UFO Beans as the “object” from the signal
- 2.Hero film: Someone discovers the UFO packaging
- 3.POV content: “You found coffee from another dimension”
- 4.AR filter: “Scan to receive the signal”
- 5.Influencers “discovering” and reacting to the product

Audience reaction:

“This is actually a coffee brand??”

Sustain Phase

Goal: Build community & repeat engagement

Content Style: Interactive / UGC / Episodic

Content Ideas

1. "Spot the UFO" challenge (users find/film UFO Beans in the wild)
2. Alien "transmissions" (ongoing story drops)
3. Fans creating theories about the origin
4. Limited drops: "New flavor from Dimension X"
5. Creator collabs (aesthetic, sci-fi, niche coffee creators)

Audience reaction:

"I want to be part of this!!"

